

Shoichi Itoh
Reconnecting Asia Virtual Fellow

Shoichi Itoh is Senior Analyst and Manager at the Institute of Energy Economics, Japan (IEEJ) and Associated Fellow at the Institute for Security & Development Policy (ISDP) in Stockholm. He is an expert on geopolitics and energy, and is a globally well-known and frequent speaker on energy security and international relations of Eurasia and the Asia-Pacific. He held visiting fellowships at the Russia and the Eurasia Program at the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS) in 2010, at the Center for Northeast Asian Policy Studies at the Brookings Institution in 2009 and at the Center for East Asian Studies at the Monterey Institute of International Studies in 2006. He also served as political and economic attaché at the Consulate-General of Japan in Khabarovsk in 2000-2003.

His main areas of recent research focus include Sino-Russian relations, China's One Belt, One Road Initiative and the New Great Game in Eurasia, the U.S. Shale Revolution and the global energy security, non-proliferation and the nuclear market, etc.

Itoh has spearheaded a variety of policy projects particularly on global energy security and the U.S.-Japan relations, and widely published on the international relations and energy links among Japan, the United States, China, Central Asia and Russia and the geopolitics of energy. Among numerous publications his recent works include "The energy factor in Russia's 'Asia pivot'" (co-authored with A. Kuchins), in Mike M. Mochizuki & Deepa M. Ollapally (eds.), Energy Security in Asia and Eurasia (Routledge, 2017); "The Geopolitics of Northeast Asia's Pipeline Development" in Mikkal E. Herberg (ed.), Energy Security and the Asia-Pacific: Course Reader (the National Bureau of Asian Research: 2014); "Sino-Japanese competition over Russian oil" in Robert Bedeski & Niklas Swanström (eds.), Eurasia's Ascent in Energy and Geopolitics : Rivalry or partnership for China, Russia and Central Asia? (Routledge: 2012); Russia Looks East: Energy Markets and Geopolitics in Northeast Asia (CSIS: 2011); "Sino-Russian Energy Relations: True Friendship or Phony Partnership?", Russian Analytical Digest, No.73, 2010; "China's Surging Energy Demand: Trigger for Conflict or Cooperation with Japan?", East Asia: an International Quarterly, Vol. 25, No. 1, 2008; etc.

Itoh received a M.A. from the School of Slavonic and East European Studies of the University of London, and earned a M.A. in international political economy and completed Ph.D. course work (ABD) at the University of Tsukuba in Japan.